Description

Kit of the 1929 Ford Model A Roadster. The street-rod phenomenon had its heyday in the early 1950s. Street-roads are lightweight, powerful and inexpensive to manufacture. Scale 1/25. 143 pieces. 14.1 cm long.

The street rod phenomenon really got going in the early 1950s. There was a good supply of old 29s Fords around, and the new overhead valve V-8s were hitting the market. This was the perfect combination for a young man who was good with his hands. The Model A Street Rods were light, powerful and cheap to build. But most importantly they were very fast! - V-8 engine with 2 different intake styles - Choice of 2 Different Frame Types - Choice of steering wheels and headlights - Molded in white and clear with chrome plated parts and soft black tires
